Attorney Case Acceptance and Analysis Report

YOUR CASE HAS BEEN ACCEPTED

Executive Attorney Decision

Covar Law's attorneys have reviewed the available documents and reported facts and accepted this case for representation. Your accepted matter concerns reported pressure during electronic signing, an alleged promise of eventual system ownership, undisclosed practical property-transfer consequences, and disputed savings and maintenance expectations under the SunPower residential solar lease. The written ownership, cancellation, payment and service provisions supply the comparison points; they do not independently prove every reported representation or loss.

Why Our Attorneys Accepted Your Case

1. Ownership promise versus end-of-term rights

You reported: You recall being told the system would become yours after twenty years of payments.

Documents show: The lease retains system ownership with SunPower and provides a purchase option at independently appraised fair market value, plus renewal and removal alternatives.

Why it mattered: An alleged free-ownership representation materially differs from a paid purchase option. Presentation evidence can establish what was said without treating the written contract as proof of the oral promise.

Evidence class: DOCUMENT CONFIRMED + CLIENT INTERVIEW CONFIRMED

2. Property filing and refinance consequences

You reported: You report discovering a property filing when a refinance was unsuccessful and pursuing a mortgage recast instead.

Documents show: The lease authorizes UCC or fixture notice of system ownership and addresses sale, transfer and refinancing cooperation. The actual filing and refinance decision are not supplied.

Why it mattered: The accepted issue concerns explanation, scope and practical effect of the claimed property burden. Written authorization is present; whether any particular filing is improper requires examination of the filing and lender correspondence.

Evidence class: DOCUMENT CONFIRMED + CLIENT INTERVIEW CONFIRMED

3. Signing pressure and cancellation disclosures

You reported: You acknowledge your own electronic signature but describe an under-one-hour presentation, an hour-limited $1,000 discount and inadequate reading time. You recall being told of three days to cancel.

Documents show: The agreement includes a seven-calendar-day cancellation provision and a separate cancellation form.

Why it mattered: The comparison is between the presentation and the written opportunity to cancel, not a claim that no notice exists or that your signature was forged.

Evidence class: DOCUMENT CONFIRMED + CLIENT INTERVIEW CONFIRMED

4. Savings, maintenance and escalating costs

You reported: You describe promised elimination of utility bills, continuing winter bills, questions about energy credits and perceived degradation without maintenance. You acknowledge annual payment increases were disclosed.

Documents show: The documents estimate savings and expressly do not guarantee them, show $88.02 increasing 2.9% annually, and describe maintenance and a production guarantee subject to terms.

Why it mattered: Utility and monitoring records can test the alleged savings and service differences. The system operates; no complete outage, roof leak or measured production shortfall is established.

Evidence class: DOCUMENT CONFIRMED + CLIENT INTERVIEW CONFIRMED

These are the principal facts, potential legal issues, and evidentiary considerations initially identified, contemplated, and weighed by our attorneys in deciding to accept your matter for representation.

Our investigation and legal strategy may expand, narrow, or otherwise evolve as additional evidence, responsible parties, legal issues, or developments are identified and explored during the course of representation.

Attorney Analysis of Documentary Evidence and Interview

The submitted agreement identifies Anshuman Rudra at the Unionville property and expressly states it is a lease, not a sale. Its January 16, 2023 summary differs from the October 2022 form-version date; the service term begins at utility interconnection, which is not independently dated here. The 5.46 kW system specification controls over a verbal size slip. The disclosed $28,094.36 estimated lifetime payment total controls over the different intake total and is not a cash-system price. Your account that annual increases were explained is preserved. The accepted issues focus on ownership, signing pressure, property consequences and actual savings/service performance rather than an invented undisclosed escalator or personal tax-credit promise.

Attorney Findings

Attorney Review Area	Finding
Sales and contract formation	Reported hour-limited incentive and insufficient reading time are compared with acknowledged electronic signing and the written seven-day cancellation notice.
Lease ownership	Reported free ownership after twenty years conflicts with written retained ownership and fair-market-value purchase provisions.
Payment structure	$88.02 first-year monthly payment with ACH benefit, 2.9% annual escalation and $28,094.36 estimated disclosed total. Current account balance is not established.
Property consequences	Refinance difficulty is reported; written filing authorization is confirmed, but the actual filing, denial and recast records remain to be obtained.
Performance and maintenance	Operating system, reported winter bills and questioned maintenance/net-metering. No measured underproduction or installation roof damage established.
Tax / incentives	You expressly denied a personal tax-credit promise. Lease owner incentives and Connecticut renewable-energy-credit assignment remain distinct from utility billing credits.

Documents, Statements, and Materials Reviewed

- SunPower residential solar lease package for Anshuman Rudra, including January 16, 2023 summary, ownership/service terms, payment schedule, Federal Consumer Leasing Act disclosures and cancellation forms.
- Available intake information and client correspondence concerning the Unionville property, lease payments, refinance concerns and maintenance expectations.
- Client interview and follow-up with Heather Beckner concerning electronic signing, ownership representations, utility bills, property consequences and service experience.

Client Interview Summary and Assessment

You sought solar after other sales approaches and completed a virtual presentation. You acknowledge signing electronically but report pressure to secure an hour-limited discount and insufficient time to read. You understood a twenty-year lease and annual increases, while recalling that the system would eventually become yours. You denied a promised personal tax credit. You report a failed refinance linked to a property filing, followed by a recast, and concern about future flexibility to sell; you are not currently planning a sale. The system is operating, but you question winter utility charges, energy-credit accounting and maintenance. You report being referred to outside service providers at your expense. You did not report roof leaks or inverter failure; roof replacement before installation was separately paid.

Case Structure

This is one accepted residential solar lease matter at the Unionville property. SunPower Capital, LLC is the named lessor; SunPower Corporation, Systems is named as installer and maintenance designee, while SAVKAT appears on the cover and in your account. Current SunStrong servicing and transfers are reported but are not independently established assignments or bankruptcy determinations. Your spouse is reportedly on the deed, not the mortgage; only you are named on this lease. No spouse signing authority or additional representation is assumed.

Lease Payment and Contract Analysis

Lease Metric	Documented or Reported Treatment
Year-one payment and benefit	$88.02 monthly with $7.50 ACH benefit; stopping automatic withdrawal ends that benefit under the disclosure.
Annual schedule	2.9% annual increases; $151.52 monthly in year twenty. The disclosure includes an initial payment plus eleven further first-year payments, then twelve per yearly tier.
Total scheduled payments	$28,094.36 disclosed estimate inclusive of sales and use tax as stated in the disclosure. It is neither cash equipment value nor a current termination quote.
Ownership / end term	SunPower retains ownership. Purchase at fair market value, removal and renewal alternatives are governed by the lease; automatic year-to-year renewal is described.
System and service	14 × 390 W panels, 5.46 kW; 5,821 kWh estimated first-year output. Repair, maintenance, monitoring and production protection are subject to written conditions.
Property and transfer	Written UCC/fixture notice authority, transfer and refinancing-cooperation provisions. Actual property filing and refinance consequences remain client-reported.
Incentives	Owner/provider tax benefits; Connecticut renewable-energy credits assigned to Eversource/United Illuminating. No homeowner tax-credit promise alleged.

The Legal Posture of Your Case

Our attorneys accepted this residential solar lease matter for development of supported consumer-protection, contract-presentation, ownership, property-control and service-performance issues. Federal Consumer Leasing Act disclosures and applicable Connecticut consumer-protection rules provide relevant analytical context; the existence of written disclosures does not decide whether the presentation was accurate. The legal analysis must respect contractual dispute-resolution terms, actual party roles and any established successor or bankruptcy limitations. Additional fact development will refine claims and remedies without reopening the completed acceptance decision.

What Covar Law Will Pursue

- Pursue supported lease termination, negotiated resolution, payment or transfer relief and appropriate ownership/removal arrangements.
- Seek correction or release of improper property-filing consequences if established, and appropriate account or credit relief where supported.
- Develop monetary or service-related remedies based on proven representations, obligations and losses through the applicable dispute-resolution process.
- These are legal objectives, not promises of free equipment, cancellation, a refund, credit results or a refinance outcome.

Preliminary Attorney Case Assessment

Assessment Area	Current Assessment
Documentary Support	Substantial written support for lease ownership, scheduled payments, cancellation, service and property-notice terms; reported presentation and resulting losses require corroboration.
Client Evidence	Client account compared with submitted agreements and supporting records; disputed allegations remain distinguished from confirmed terms.
Limitations	No actual property filing, refinance denial, current account statement, production comparison or independently established servicing assignment is supplied. These are evidence-development items, not new acceptance conditions.
Attorney Decision	APPROVED

Evidence That Can Further Strengthen Your Case

Your case has already been accepted. The following records are not conditions of acceptance. They may materially strengthen the evidentiary record and assist our attorneys as representation and case development proceed.

- Sales presentation, proposal, messages and electronic-signing delivery history addressing the discount, ownership and cancellation representations.
- Actual UCC/fixture filing, title search, refinance decision and mortgage-recast correspondence.
- Current lease statements, full payment history and servicing/assignment notices.
- Before-and-after utility bills, production exports, net-metering accounting and maintenance requests/responses.
- Property ownership and any co-owner acknowledgments relevant to the lease, without assuming additional signing authority.

Your Approved Representation

After completing the attorney review described above, Covar Law approved the matter under the Firm's one-time Flat Fee Retainer program. The flat fee is for the approved scope of legal representation. It is not a contingency fee and does not depend upon a particular outcome.

Approved One-Time Flat-Fee Retainer: $9,995

Pay As You Go Options

Option	Down Payment	Approximate Monthly Payment
Option 1	$3,000 down	approximately $255/month
Option 2	$2,000 down	approximately $295/month
Option 3	$1,000 down	approximately $335/month

All three options are client choices under the same $9,995 Flat Fee Retainer, the same attorney-client relationship, the same legal strategy, and the same approved scope of representation. Only the payment method differs.

Additional Costs / Scope Explanation

Each of the above payment plans fully covers:

- ALL legal fees, including court costs and expenses
- ALL settlement negotiations and mediation
- ALL Civil Litigation in Federal District Court
- ALL Investigation and Deposition costs
- ALL Expert witness testimony

The signed representation agreement controls the final terms and scope of the attorney-client relationship.

Important No-Guarantee and Payment Guidance

Acceptance means Covar Law's attorneys determined that the presently available documents, reported facts, and legal issues justify undertaking representation. Acceptance does not guarantee cancellation, debt forgiveness, monetary recovery, system removal, credit correction, settlement, a particular court ruling, or any other specific outcome.

This report does not direct you to stop making payments. Payment decisions may affect credit reporting, collection activity, default status, legal strategy, transfer rights, lease remedies, and contract consequences. Covar Law does not instruct clients to stop making solar lease payments through a general acceptance report.

Acceptance Conclusion

Covar Law's attorneys have reviewed the available documents and reported facts and accepted this case for representation. The accepted matter connects your reported ownership, signing, property and service concerns with the written SunPower lease and payment structure. Representation is designed to pursue relief supported by that record while distinguishing documented terms from disputed representations and unverified losses. Your choice to engage and execution of the retainer payment and agreement remain separate from the firm's completed acceptance. No specific legal, financial, property or equipment outcome is guaranteed.
